

The words he didn't say

Geoff Bradford

Starry night, a couple walks along the beach
Leaving footsteps in the sand
She smiles, and brushes back her hair
She's got a flower in her hand
But later on when she's by herself
Her heart is filled with pain
She's still waiting for the words he didn't say,

She keeps her secrets in her heart
Locked up so deep inside
Just hoping that the chance will come
To bring them to the light
That she wants so much to have a family of her own some day
But she's waiting for the words he didn't say, oh yeah
She's still waiting for the words he didn't say

She stands at the mirror, and she studies what she sees
So many dreams, so many possibilities
She has to take a stand, choose the way that she must go
Cause one thing she don't see is a woman that is ending up alone, oh no

She pours another glass of wine, and puts some music on
She knows she doesn't want a life where she's just dragging him along
So she tells him she might move in with a friend out in LA
Give him one more chance to say the things he didn't say

And she's still thinking about it
As she packs her car and drives away
Now she'll never hear the words he didn't say, oh no
Now she'll never hear the words he didn't say
