

Persuaded

Feels like I'm flying a sign for you

Gentle lady tell me whither dost thou go
Wilt thou tarry here a while that we may speak
I see the fire in your eyes
I don't presume to condescend
But you must know a heart that's closed will find it hard to find a friend
And understand that when you touch, you need to use your open hand
Will you give your open hand?

If your heart can be persuaded, if you will unlock the door
It's so long that you've been waiting for the love you're searching for
If your heart can be persuaded now, there's a way for me and you
I'll be persuaded too

There's a difference between obstinate and strong
Maybe love is no exception to the rule
If we're serious of mind we can adapt when we are wrong
And know insisting on rigidity is just the virtue of a fool
So many times to move along we must admit when something's real
Sometimes to win you have to yield

If your heart can be persuaded, if you will unlock the door
It's so long that you've been waiting for the love you're searching for
If your heart can be persuaded now, there's a way for me and you
I'll be persuaded too
I could be persuaded too