

If You Don't Have A Reason

Geoff Bradford

If you don't have a reason to go, is that a reason to stay?
If you don't have a reason to go, does that make you bad if you walk away?
If it's pretty good, is it wrong to want more?
If it's pretty good, why can't you stop thinking bout what's outside that door?

It's just that day after day, nothing ever seems to change
You got this one shot at life, and it feels like it's slipping away
And if you're being honest, there's someone else inside of your brain
And if you don't do something, this chance might never come again

Are you sitting in silence, when in your heart you still have something to say?
Have you taken it as far as you can, and yet you want more?
If you don't have a reason to go, why do you keep thinking bout what's outside that door

It's just that day after day, nothing ever seems to change
You got this one shot at life, and it feels like it's slipping away
And if you're being honest, there's someone else inside of your brain
And if you don't do something, this chance might never come again

And if you're being honest, there's someone else inside of your brain
And if you don't do something, this chance might never come again
If you don't do something, this chance may never come again